What We Value

With Jesus as our center, we commit to including all people,
strengthening our relationships (and)
practicing peace and justice.

Land Acknowledgment: We acknowledge, with humility, that the land where we sit and stand today is land that was home to the Susquehannock, Shawnee, and Lenape people. Let us be aware that we occupy their homeland, and that their presence is imbued in this land.

"King Tingz" (banner on right)

By Rev. Nicole Falson

Inspired by Matthew 2:1-12, 16-18

Acrylic, paper, markers, synthetic hair on canvas

If there is one thing I can't stand, it is when people disregard the spiritual use of herbs, metals, and the stars. For years, Indigenous practices—such as the use of sage—have been shamed, even as high church settings actively use incense in worship. We have reached a tension where anything that does not resemble a particular kind of Christian practice is labeled pagan or satanic. I often remind people that Jesus was gifted gold, frankincense, and myrrh by those who followed the stars to find him. That truth is at the heart of my piece, King Tingz.

I wanted to emphasize the sky and the importance of the stars, which were essential to the Magi's witness, and to bless each king with a different gift woven into their attire.

Of the Magi, the one bowing bears the flower of frankincense and a map of modern Persia, marking their return home by a new route after defying Herod. Crowned with cornrows and greenery, they reflect a grounding to the earth—holding heaven and earth together, as Jesus does in his divinity and humanity.

The king to the right bears myrrh flowers and holds an infant—not Jesus—while her sleeve carries the Palestinian flag and the word Nakba, remembering the genocide of 1947. She weeps for the children killed by Herod and wears a crown wrapped in a blue bandana, a nod to Chola culture and the importance of los reyes in Latino Christianity.

The king to the left is adorned in gold and a starry durag, gazing toward the sky as the navigator and guide. This headwear reflects research into Persian Magi and their varied forms of turbans.

Living in a Hispanic community and worshiping in a Spanish-speaking church has taught me that BIPOC communities do not play about los reyes. I wanted people to see themselves in this art—and to remember our shared connection to both the stars above and the earth beneath us.
